Scholarship Committee Update

As we embark on another year of supporting our students' educational pursuits, the Scholarship Committee is thrilled to kickstart our fundraising efforts for the 2025 scholarships. Your ongoing support has played a key role in our past accomplishments, and we truly appreciate your continued involvement.

In the previous academic year, we had the privilege of awarding three outstanding student leaders with $1,000 scholarships out of 30 notable applicants. Witnessing the impact of these awards on their academic journeys reinforces our commitment to sustaining and expanding our scholarship program.

Looking to the year ahead, we aim to raise $3,000 through innovative and diversified fundraising initiatives. Notably, the vendor sponsorship last year marked a significant milestone, contributing $1,750 to our overall fundraising total.

To achieve this ambitious goal, we rely on your support and engagement. We encourage you to expand our outreach efforts within your institutions by sharing our communications with your colleagues and acquainting them with the details of our mission and initiatives.

OACRAO is Turning 100 in 2026!!!

OACRAO's 100th Conference – Help Us Celebrate a Century of Gatherings!

In 2026, OACRAO will host its 100th annual conference — a remarkable milestone marking a century of conferences, collaboration, and community in Ohio higher education.

To celebrate this historic event, we're planning a special centennial celebration, and we'd love your help in bringing our history to life. We're collecting photos from past conferences and events to showcase the people and moments that have shaped OACRAO over the years. Whether it's a group shot from the '80s or a candid from last year, your photos can help tell our story.

We're also gathering contact information for retirees and past members who have contributed to OACRAO through the decades. If you or someone you know has moved on or retired but was once part of the OACRAO community, we want to invite them to join the celebration!

To contribute, please use the forms below:

Let's make the 100th OACRAO Conference a celebration to remember — one that honors our past and strengthens our future.

OACRAO 2025 Call for Proposals: Share Your Ideas!

The OACRAO 2025 Conference is just around the corner, and we need your help to make this year's event the best one yet! The members of the Program Committee will begin working on the 2025 conference program and invite you to share your session ideas and contribute to the success of our annual conference. The Program Committee will convene in April to review all proposals and discuss session ideas to create a robust program agenda.

Why Submit?

It's easy to contribute, and your ideas can make a real impact. Here's what you need to know:

You don't have to be the presenter: If you know someone who would be a great fit, feel free to suggest them as the presenter, or submit an idea without a designated speaker.

Ideas don't need to be fully developed: We're looking for your initial thoughts! Broad ideas are welcome, and you don't have to have everything finalized.

Suggest topics from other conferences: If you've seen something at another event that would resonate with the OACRAO audience, don't hesitate to submit it.

Take this opportunity: share innovative ideas, best practices, staff training techniques, business process improvements, or practical solutions.

Important Dates:

Proposal Deadline: April 14

Go here →→ <https://forms.gle/CXQkFynj9kFSXZUw5> to fill out the form.

Your input is key to developing a meaningful, well-rounded, and impactful October conference. Submit your ideas through the online form and help shape an unforgettable OACRAO 2025!

OACRAO's A-C-R-O-ss the Years

David Schneider, Assistant Provost for Institutional Research and University Registrar—Otterbein University

1. What inspired you to first get involved with OACRAO?

I began my career in higher education in 2003 with a position in the Office of the Registrar at my alma mater, The Ohio State University. Two things really inspired my initial interest in OACRAO: first was encouragement from the leadership of the office, most notably Jack Miner and Brad Myers, who truly believed in the importance of professional development and also in giving back to the profession. It really helped to build confidence in me as a young professional, knowing that they saw “something” in me and wanted me to be included in an activity that they saw so much value in. The second thing that inspired my interest in OACRAO was a drive to learn more about the Registrar profession. It’s often said that no one grows up aspiring to become a Registrar someday, and that was certainly true of me as well. While I conceptually understood what a Registrar’s Office did, our roles at OSU were so specialized that it was sometimes hard to see the “big picture” of what we were doing. OACRAO presented an opportunity for me to learn more about the career opportunities that existed, and what a successful professional looked like.

2. What advice would you give to new members looking to get involved?

First, volunteer to be on a committee. Committee work is the best way to engage with OACRAO and serve your profession throughout the calendar year. It can also - as I’m guessing anyone who has been on the Scholarship Committee can attest to - be a really enriching experience. Second, share your expertise by volunteering to present a session. You don’t have to be the world’s greatest public speaker to present, and I’m willing to bet that you have more to share than you think you do. The best OACRAO sessions, in my opinion, are focused on process improvement. If you’ve ever successfully re-engineered a process in your office, the rest of your colleagues around the state, myself included, stand to benefit by hearing what you learned along the way and what you’ve gained.

3. How has OACRAO helped you grow professionally or personally?

From a professional growth perspective, I have no doubt that OACRAO involvement has significantly contributed to my career and led me to where I am today. I’ve been able to develop professional connections, which have translated to personal connections, and are true friendships that will last a lifetime. OACRAO involvement helped me to rise through the ranks during my time at OSU, and really prepared me for my current role at Otterbein University. From a personal perspective, OACRAO helped me to gain confidence during my time as a younger professional. Looking back on it now, internally I really struggled with that “imposter syndrome” feeling, wondering what, if anything, that I had to contribute. The confidence that my colleagues from around the state instilled in me at that time in my career was very reassuring and quite humbling. It helped me to believe that I had something to contribute.

4. What keeps you involved?

Honestly, the first thing that comes to mind is that it’s just a lot of fun. The opportunity to attend the annual meeting in the fall, and to see so many friends who feel like family, and to meet new people in the profession, is something I am always looking forward to. The random committee meetings that I have throughout the year help to break up the everyday routines of the Registrar’s Office, and also help to remind me of the bigger picture that we can all contribute to. I also think back to the time when I was new in my career, and now desire to serve in the role of someone who can potentially help to instill confidence in today’s young professionals. It meant so much to me back then, and I like to think that I might be able to have a similar impact.

5. If you could describe OACRAO in one word or phrase, what would it be and why?

Community. Whenever I think of OACRAO, I just tend to think of all of the best parts of being a part of a community, and OACRAO has all of those things. It’s comprised of friendly people who are willing to share with and care about the good people who live and work nearby. And just like the Westerville community where my wife and I live, it’s a place that I am always excited to return to and connect with.

OACRAO fun at AACRAO 2025!

At the 110th AACRAO conference in Seattle, OACRAO members convened at Ben Paris restaurant on Tuesday, April 1, for a casual reception, focused on catching up with familiar faces, forging new acquaintances, and sharing conference insights in a relaxed atmosphere. It was a nice opportunity for OACRAO members attending the conference to connect in a more informal setting.
